Table of contents

Editor’s note .................................................................................................................. 353

Katarzyna Kolasińska-Morawska
Determinants of purchasing behaviour of the e-consumer in a multidimensional reality .......................... 355

Magdalena Murzyn, Joanna Nogieć
Demarketing in the tobacco business ........................................................................ 363

Magdalena Murzyn, Joanna Nogieć
Declared values in the opinion of different generations .............................................. 373

Dariusz Fatuła, Adam Sagan
Altruism and rivalry as decision-making styles of households and their role in the purchasing process .............................................................. 381

Mateusz Rak
The brand and corporate mission for the perspective of corporate social responsibility .......................................................... 389

Aleksandra Perchła-Włosik, Joanna Wardzała
Young members of households as consumers of mass media in the light of qualitative research .......................................................... 397

Robert Wolny
Internet as a source of information for e-consumers about commercial offers and services .......................... 407

Magdalena Olejniczak
Consumer risk in the functional food purchase process .............................................. 417

Magdalena Walczak
The perception of the value of professional education in the light of research .............. 425

Wanda Patrzałek
Creating a living space in the household in the background of new trends in consumption .......................................................... 433

Barbara Mróz-Gorgoń
Polish fashion brands in minds of young consumers .................................................. 441

Jarosław Ziętarski
Economic aspects of the creditworthiness of households in the years 2003-2012 .................. 451

Agnieszka Dejnaka
The internet and communication technologies in view of various typologies of generations .......................................................... 461

Grzegorz Klimek
Freedom and openness as a socio-centric example of innovation .............................. 467