This issue is the result of co-operation with the International Society for Intercommunication of New Ideas (ISINI, www.isini.info). The aims of ISINI fit very well in the focus and scope of CEREM, which is (see: <https://www.cerem-review.eu/focus-and-scope/>):

„The Central European Review of Economics and Management (CEREM, formerly WSB Research Journal) focuses on state-of-the-art empirical and theoretical studies in the field of economics and management. It aims to create a platform for exchange of knowledge and ideas between research, business, governmental and other actors. Besides more traditional scientific papers, the journal welcomes conceptual papers, opinion papers and policy discussions from academic, corporate, governmental and civil society representatives.

An important aim of CEREM is to stimulate open-minded discussion of new ideas, new applications of old ideas as well as development of interdisciplinary approaches to current challenges in economics and management. This is of particular importance in the substantial changes that have taken place and are expected to take place in the world. Topical economics and management focus areas are interdisciplinary, non-unified and on the move by nature. They include, but are not limited to issues regarding: sustainable development, emerging economies, European strategies, value chains, financial intermediation and managerial designs.“

ISINI (see: www.isini.info) ,,... seeks to create or recreate alternative paradigms that can help to formulate adequate policies to solve those problems. ... the purpose of the society is threefold:

1. To foster and support the discovery and dissemination of new ideas, in particular in economics and other social sciences and to arrange for their testing (logical and/or empirical) in the realm of various possible social, economic and political systems, as far as analysis can go.
2. To initiate and cultivate contact and consultation not only among economists, financial economists, sociologists and political scientist but also between social and natural scientists including men of arts and letters.
3. To study systematically (using both theoretical and practical reason) the application of new ideas to problems of the real world of today and tomorrow in various existing social regimes and considering the diverse levels of development and historical circumstances. A priority goal is to elaborate development, stabilization, and transitional plans for the various countries where the Society is represented.“

We express the hope on fruitful co-operation in the future.
